During the fiscal year [1948] 1949 the head of any department or independent establishment of the Government having funds available for scientific investigations within the scope of the functions of the Bureau of Mines may, with the approval of the Secretary, transfer to the Bureau such sums as may be necessary therefor, which sums so transferred may be expended for the same objects and in the same manner as sums appropriated herein may be expended.

The Federal Security Administrator may detail medical officers of the Public Health Service for cooperative health, safety, or sanitation work with the Bureau of Mines, and the compensation and expenses of the officers so detailed may be paid from the applicable appropriations made herein for the Bureau of Mines.

The Bureau of Mines is authorized, during the fiscal year [1948] 1949, to sell directly or through any Government agency, including corporations, any metal or mineral product that may be manufactured in pilot plants operated from funds appropriated to the Bureau of Mines, and the proceeds of such sales shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

The following appropriations herein made to the Bureau of Mines shall be available for the hire, maintenance, and operation of aircraft: "Operating rescue cars and stations and investigation of accidents"; "Investigation and development of domestic mineral deposits, except fuels"; and "Metallurgical research and pilot plants".

[The Department of Commerce is authorized to transfer to the Department of the Interior for the use of the Bureau of Mines, without compensation therefor, full jurisdiction, possession, and control of the United States Weather Bureau Station at Mount Weather, in the counties of Loudoun and Clarke, State of Virginia, together with all buildings, improvements, furniture, and fixtures now in or upon the land.]

[The Bureau of Mines is hereby authorized to acquire by transfer without exchange of funds, for three years, beginning July 1, 1947, from the War Department, the Navy Department, or the War Assets Administration, buildings, equipment, materials, and supplies of all kinds with an appraised value of not to exceed $3,000,000 from the surplus stores of these agencies, for use in performing its functions by the Bureau of Mines or by any office of the Bureau in the United States and Alaska: Provided, That the authorization in this paragraph for transfer of surplus property to the Bureau of Mines shall not be construed to deny to veterans the priority accorded to them in obtaining surplus property under Public Law 375, approved May 3, 1946.]

Appropriations in this Act to the Bureau of Mines shall be available for the purchase (not to exceed one hundred and fifty-four, of which ninety-four shall be for replacement only) and hire of passenger motor vehicles. (Interior Department Appropriation Act, 1948.)

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

GENERAL STATEMENT

The Department of Justice represents the Government in legal matters and renders advice and opinions upon request of the President and the heads of executive departments. The work of the Department includes the activities of the United States district attorneys and marshals in the 93 judicial districts, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Immigration and Naturalization Service, the Federal Prison System, Federal Prison Industries, Inc., and the Office of Alien Property. The estimates for Federal Prison Industries, Inc., are set forth in the chapter on Government corporations. The Department's requirements for direct appropriations in 1949 are 1.3 percent over estimated requirements for 1948, primarily due to an increase in the antitrust program and direct appropriation to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for investigative activities pertaining to the atomic energy program, previously provided for by a transfer of funds from the Atomic Energy Commission.

LEGAL ACTIVITIES AND GENERAL ADMINISTRATION

This section of the estimates consists of the legal and administrative offices and divisions, the majority of which have relatively stable workloads. Adjustments have been made where required to reflect variations in workloads and economies. Substantial increases are included for the Antitrust Division, the Claims Division, the United States marshals, and printing and binding, the latter three items being more than offset by other reductions. The estimate of appropriation for the Antitrust Division has been increased $850,000 to provide for an expanded antitrust program. The appropriation for the pay and expenses of bailiffs has been eliminated. The estimates for 1949 under this section are 3.5 percent over estimated appropriations for 1948.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION

Investigatory activities pertaining to the Government employee loyalty program and the atomic energy program are expected to decline in 1949. This decline is expected to be partially offset by increases in other investigations, including those relating to legislation enacted by the first session of the Eightieth Congress. Provision for investigations required by the Atomic Energy Act are included in the estimate of appropriation for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, which accounts for the increase of 3.3 percent in 1949 over 1948. The estimate provides for employees sufficient to permit the Bureau to return to a 40-hour week.

IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE

The inspection and patrol activities of the Service are faced with a heavy volume of international traffic by land, sea, and air, with related detention problems. The number of apprehensions and deportations is increasing, and the backlog of investigations remains at a high level.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

The estimate for 1949, which is 0.5 percent over the 1948 appropriation, provides increases for deportations, investigations, and control of visitors. These are largely offset by downward adjustments for conclusion of the alien enemy detention program in 1948, transferred rental costs, and Central Office activities.

FEDERAL PRISON SYSTEM

Estimates for 1949 reflect an anticipated decline in the inmate population of Federal prisons, the closing of one institution or effecting equivalent savings, and no increase in estimated per capita cost of maintaining prisoners. One prison camp has been closed during 1948. Current appropriations contemplate an average daily inmate population of 18,500; the estimate for 1949 is to provide for a daily average of 17,500. Estimates for public works projects are continued at a minimum, being confined to projects already in progress and certain emergency items affecting the security of the institutions. The 1949 estimates are approximately 2.9 percent under the estimated appropriations for 1948.

OFFICE OF ALIEN PROPERTY

This Office operates under a limitation on administrative expenses, with funds derived from vested properties. The limitation estimate is approximately 16 percent above the amount for 1948. This increase will enable the Office to accelerate work in which the time element is important, particularly those activities affected by war powers of uncertain duration. The vesting program is being emphasized, and the disposition of numerous title and debt claims will be expedited. Early liquidation of substantial properties is dependent upon the outcome of litigation.

Return of Deposits To Secure Payment of Fines and Passage Money, Immigration and Naturalization Service—

Amounts collected from transportation companies, owners and masters of vessels and agents to cover fines that may be imposed for unlawful entry of aliens and to secure the return of passage money (including head tax if paid by the alien as part of passage money) are deposited in the trust receipt account "Deposits to secure payment of fines and passage money, Immigration and Naturalization Service." The portion of receipts representing fines, penalties, etc., is transferred monthly to miscellaneous-receipt account "Immigration fines and penalties." Such amounts as are required to make refunds to transportation companies and others in cases where no fine is imposed and for payment to aliens of amounts due them are established from time to time in the appropriation account. EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

GENERAL STATEMENT

The Department of Labor was created by the act of March 4, 1913, "to foster, promote, and develop the welfare of the wage earners of the United States, to improve their working conditions, and to advance their opportunities for profitable employment."

One of the announced objectives of the President is the strengthening of the Department of Labor. The severe reduction in appropriations for fiscal year 1948 resulted in suspension of the President's program in this respect as well as in impairment of the Department's ability to perform functions imposed by law. The estimates submitted will enable the Department to discharge its legal duties and will permit some progress toward the announced objective.

Legislation enacted during the first session of the Eightieth Congress makes direct comparisons between 1948 appropriations and 1949 estimates very difficult. Under the Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947, the United States Conciliation Service was abolished on August 21, 1947. Because of this and other nonrecurring items in 1948, the increase shown in the above table is low by $795,383. The 1949 estimates for the Department therefore represent an increase for comparable functions of $9,159,900, or about 10.8 percent. The 1948 appropriations, however, cover only part-year operation of the farm placement program of the United States Employment Service and of union registration and other activities under the Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947. Of the increase, $2,571,600 is required to finance these new functions of the Department on a full-year basis. In order to maintain necessary services of local employment offices of the United States Employment Service, unencumbered balances in the States totaling $1,504,400 were utilized in 1948 partially to offset the effects of appropriation cuts. The appropriations proposed represent an increase over 1948 levels on an annual basis of $5,083,900, or about 5.7 percent.

The Secretary of Labor has recently indicated that the prime objective of the Department is to mobilize its resources so as to make the most effective possible contribution to the Government's role in meeting and resolving problems which concern the Nation's welfare. Under the active leadership of the Secretary's office, all units of the Department are directing their programs toward unified action in support of this departmental objective. The activities which the Department has identified as those in which its facilities can be useful are (1) stimulation of increased production of goods and services, (2) achievement of a sound relationship between wages and prices, (3) improvement of labor-management relationships, and (4) support of and participation in foreign-policy effectuation.

Consistent with the request of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives, the appropriation structure of the Department has been recast to eliminate central appropriations for all miscellaneous expenses except penalty mail. This results in a transfer of appropriations in the 1949 estimates from the Office of the Secretary to other bureaus.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

The Office of the Secretary provides general supervision and policy direction over the activities of the Department. In addition to the immediate office of the Secretary of Labor, the activities financed from appropriations under this head include (1) administrative staff functions, such as the budget and personnel offices, library, Division of Information, and the immediate office of the Solicitor of the Department; (2) the operating programs of the Office of International Labor, Office of the Solicitor, Division of Labor Standards, and Veterans' Reemployment Rights Division; and (3) penalty mail for the entire Department. In 1948, all departmental miscellaneous expenses and the part-year appropriations for the United States Conciliation Service were also included under this head.

The Office of International Labor is a small coordinating unit in the Office of the Secretary through which the Department discharges its responsibilities in connection with international affairs. These include direction of United States participation in the International Labor Organization, assistance in United Nations affairs, membership on the Board of the Foreign Service, and advisory services pertaining to economic and social aspects of foreign policy and the administration of occupied territories.

The Office of the Solicitor, in addition to normal staff functions, is responsible for wage-determination work related to Federal construction and for litigation and hearings activities under various laws administered by the Department. Workloads of this Office are almost entirely beyond the control of the Department and continue the upward trend of recent years.

The Division of Labor Standards assists industry, labor, and the States in improving and developing sound standards for labor laws, regulations, and administration and sponsors activities aimed at reducing industrial accidents and improving working conditions of employees. The Division acts as a clearinghouse of information for State labor departments and in this capacity conducts national and regional conferences at which labor-law administrators, workers, employers, and interested public agencies exchange views upon proper labor standards and administrative methods.

The Veterans' Reemployment Rights Division was established pursuant to the act of March 31, 1947, which transferred from the expiring Selective Service System to the Secretary of Labor the function of providing assistance to returning veterans of the armed forces and the merchant marine in the exercise of their reemployment rights under the Selective Training and Service Act of 1940 and the act of June 23, 1943. These rights include not merely assurance of reemployment but others concerned with 1-year guarantee of employment, vacation, seniority, and promotion.

The United States Conciliation Service was abolished on August 21, 1947, under the terms of the Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947, which became law on June 23, 1947. The elimination of this and other nonrecurring items and the decentralization to the bureaus of miscellaneous costs results in a reduction of roughly $3,231,500, which is partially offset by increases totaling $275,000 recommended in the 1949 estimates. Included in this sum is $69,300 for strengthening the staff engaged in international activities and $162,100 for promotional work in the field of industrial safety and sound standards for labor laws and administration. The balance of the increase is primarily for cost increases.

APPRENTICE TRAINING SERVICE

The Apprentice Training Service encourages and promotes the establishment and maintenance of employee training programs in apprenticeable trades and occupations through assistance to State apprenticeship councils and directly to management and labor. Since the end of the war, renewed interest in the full training of apprentices has resulted in the expansion of the number of training programs sponsored by employers or groups of employers and in the number of apprentices in training. The number of programs has increased from 9,500 to 25,400 between July 1, 1946, and July 1, 1947, and the number of registered apprentices from 63,600 to 145,000 in the same period. Although further increases in programs and apprentices are expected during the fiscal years 1948 and 1949, the estimates of appropriation for 1949 are based on the assumption that the rate of expansion will tend to level off during this period. Exclusive of transfers proposed in the estimates, the only increase recommended is for within-grade promotion costs.

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS

The Bureau of Labor Statistics since 1888 has been charged with the statutory duty "to acquire and diffuse among the people of the United States useful information on subjects connected with labor, in the most general and comprehensive sense * * *." It collects, analyzes, and publishes statistical and other relevant information concerning employment, wages, hours of labor, earnings, wholesale and retail prices, cost of living, the effect of technological advances upon labor productivity and employment, collective bargaining and labor disputes, industrial accidents, foreign labor conditions, and building construction. The statistical series and economic studies produced by the Bureau are released through the Monthly Labor Review, press releases, Bureau of Labor Statistics bulletins, and other media. The data constitute basic information for legislators and other Government officials concerned with formulation or execution of local, State, and national policies relative to the economic well-being of the Nation. Moreover, the statistical and economic information is of inestimable value for business and community planning and to labor and management in the conduct of industrial relations. The enactment of the Labor-Management Relations Act, 1947, making the Bureau the statutory depository for collective bargaining agreements and related information, lends increased importance to the latter service.

Because of budgetary restrictions many of the Bureau's statistical series had to be curtailed in 1948 and emphasis was placed on maintaining national series at the expense of State and local series. The 1949 budget envisages restoration or extension of some of the State and local series, particularly in the field of prices, employment, and construction. Increases are also provided for supplemental occupational wage-rate surveys, productivity indexes, and accident-cause studies. Exclusive of transfers proposed in the estimates, the recommended appropriation for 1949 would provide an increase of about $1,315,000.

UNITED STATES EMPLOYMENT SERVICE

The United States Employment Service was established by the act of June 6, 1933, to promote and develop a national system of public employment offices and to maintain a veterans' employment service and a farm placement service. The coordinated Federal program of this organization is carried out through a headquarters and regional staff and a veterans' employment service staff provided for in a salaries and expenses appropriation. Direct placement and related employment service functions are carried on through the affiliated State employment services financed by Federal grants to the States for these purposes.

The Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944 enlarged the responsibilities of the United States Employment Service by the creation of a Veterans' Placement Service Board to assure a more specialized and effective job counseling and placement service for veterans.

The budget for 1949 reflects the transfer of the farm placement program back to the United States Employment Service effective January 1, 1948. This function has been performed by the Department of Agriculture since 1943. Aside from proposed transfers in the estimates, an increase of $7,487,700 is recommended, of which

$7,157,600 is for grants to States for public employment offices and $330,100 is for general administration by the Federal agency. Of the total increase, $2,538,600 is to provide full-year operation of the farm placement program, and $1,002,000 is for State salary increases financed under the grants appropriation. The balance of $3,947,100 is for cost increases such as rents, supplies and equipment, and State merit and retirement system contributions, and for strengthening of State services.

WOMEN'S BUREAU

The Women's Bureau, under the act of June 5, 1920, formulates standards and policies to promote the welfare of wage-earning women, improve their working conditions, increase their efficiency, and advance their opportunities for profitable employment. Its program is based on its responsibility to more than 18 million women now in the Nation's labor force. Studies reveal that 84 out of each 100 working women must work to support themselves or others; in other words, economic reasons require large numbers of women to remain in employment. At the present time, as in the past, there is substantial activity concerning legislation affecting women workers, and regulations and administrative practices under any laws enacted. While the Bureau has no responsibility for administering any laws or regulations, it does assist and advise the States and other interested bodies in promoting sound legislation and in promulgating acceptable standards and regulations thereunder.

The 1949 estimates will permit this Bureau to continue its activities at slightly above 1948 levels. Exclusive of transfers proposed in the estimates, an increase of about $14,000 is proposed.

WAGE AND HOUR DIVISION

The Wage and Hour Division is responsible for the administration of the wage-and-hour and child-labor provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 which apply to employees engaged in interstate commerce or in the production of goods for commerce. This Division also administers the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act of 1936, which requires the recipients of Government supply contracts in amounts of $10,000 or more to operate upon a 40-hour basic workweek with overtime pay for hours worked beyond that number, and to maintain specified standards for employment of child labor and for the safety and health of employees. The enactment, late in fiscal year 1947, of the Portal-to-Portal Act of 1947 has required adjustments in administrative procedures and interpretations and results in more time-consuming inspections of covered establishments. The effect of these factors, coupled with that of lowered appropriations, is to reduce in 1948 the number of establishments inspected in a year. The 1949 recommended appropriation will permit continuance of the 1948 level of operations and will provide for redetermination of minimum wage rates under the Public Contracts Act in 14 industries. After adjustment for transfers in the estimates, the net increase proposed is $69,000.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

General Statement

The National Military Establishment consisting of the Department of the Air Force, the Department of the Army, and the Department of the Navy, and certain other related agencies was created under title II of the National Security Act of 1947 (Public Law 253, 80th Cong., approved July 26, 1947). The act became operative on September 18, 1947. As part of a comprehensive program for the future security of the United States, the act was intended to provide for the authoritative coordination and unified direction under civilian control, but without merger, of the three military departments; and to provide for the effective strategic direction of the Armed Services, for their operation under unified control and for their integration into an efficient team of land, naval, and air forces. The act provided that the National Military Establishment should be headed by the Secretary of Defense, who would be assisted in the performance of certain specialized functions by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, a War Council, a Munitions Board, and a Research and Development Board.

The budget of the National Military Establishment for 1949 presents the Air Force and Army requirements in combined form, with the exception of salaries in the Offices of the Secretary of Air and the Air Chief of Staff and the direct Air Force requirements for procurement, maintenance and operation of aircraft, and related projects. These estimates were presented to the Bureau of the Budget prior to the implementation of the National Security Act.

The cash estimates of the National Military Establishment, exclusive of civil functions and The Panama Canal, total $9,370,404,700. This sum includes $490,270,000 cash for liquidating previously established contract authority, and the net amount available for obligation is therefore $8,880,134,700. There is provided, in addition, $923 million of new contract authority for the Navy and Air Force.

Direct appropriations for the Air Force for 1949 are estimated at $1,169,426,000 including $250 million for liquidating previous contract authority. The net amount together with new contract authority of $550 million would provide a total of $1,469,426,000 for new obligations in 1949.

The estimates of appropriations for the Department of the Army total $4,683,834,000, which includes $24 million to liquidate contract authority granted in the fiscal year 1948, or a net amount of $4,659,834,000 for new obligations in 1949. It is estimated that approximately 50 percent of this amount is required for expenses and support of the Air Force.

Estimates of appropriation for the Department of the Navy total $3,510,749,700, including $216,270,000 to liquidate contract authority granted in 1948 and prior years. The net amount together with new contract authority of $373 million would provide a total of $3,667,479,700 for new obligations in 1949, of which approximately 40 percent is for naval aviation and its necessary support.

Of the total of $9,796,739,700 for new obligations in the fiscal year 1949 for the Departments of the Air Force, Army, and Navy, it is estimated that approximately 54 percent is for the support of aviation activities, including $1,172,000,000 for new obligations for aircraft procurement, and that the remainder of 46 percent is for the ground and surface forces.

The estimates for the National Military Establishment also include $6,395,000 for the Office of the Secretary of Defense and its associated boards and agencies.

Office of the Secretary of Defense

The functions of the Secretary of Defense, as established by the National Security Act of 1947, are to provide general policy and programs for the National Military Establishment, as well as general direction, authority and control.

Attached to the Office of the Secretary of Defense and working under his general supervision are the agencies established under title II of the National Security Act of 1947 to perform certain specialized functions essential to successful performance by the unified National Military Establishment. A description of their duties follows:

(a) Joint Chiefs of Staff and Joint Staff.—The Joint Chiefs of Staff are assigned the functions of providing top-policy direction for the military forces with special reference to the preparation of strategic and joint logistic plans and to the provision of strategic direction and assignment of logistic responsibilities under these plans. In addition, the Joint Chiefs of Staff have jurisdiction over the unification of command in strategic areas, the review of major matériel and personnel requirements for the military forces, and the formulation of policy for coordinating the education and training of their members. The Joint Chiefs of Staff also act as principal military advisers to the President and the Secretary of Defense.

The Joint Staff is charged with performing, for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the staff work and other detailed duties which are assigned it by the Joint Chiefs of Staff in the performance of their functions.

(b) War Council.—The War Council was established by the National Security Act of 1947, with the function of advising the Secretary of Defense on matters of broad policy relating to the armed forces. It is composed of the Secretary of Defense, as chairman, together with the Secretaries of the Army, the Navy, and the Air Force, the Chiefs of Staff of the Army and Air Force, and the Chief of Naval Operations. The staff work of the War Council is performed within the office of the Secretary of Defense.

(c) Munitions Board.—The Munitions Board was assigned, by the National Security Act of 1947, a number of functions relating both to the peacetime and to the wartime operations of the National Military Establishment. It is charged with the coordination of all activities relating to industrial matters, including departmental plans for procurement, production, and distribution, and with the planning of the military aspects of industrial mobilization. Within the National Military Establishment itself, the Munitions Board is charged with recommending assignment of procurement responsibilities, with planning for standardization of specifications, and with providing for single procurement of technical equipment and common use items through the greatest practicable allocation of purchase authority. The Munitions Board has the responsibility for determining relative priorities among the various segments of the military procurement programs, and for assisting in the evaluation of the logistic feasibility of strategic operations in terms of estimates of potential production, procurement and personnel.

(d) Research and Development Board.—As described in the National Security Act of 1947, the Research and Development Board was established for the purpose of advising the Secretary of Defense concerning the status of scientific research relative to the national security, and with assisting him in assuring adequate provision for research and development on scientific problems affecting national security. Within the National Military Establishment, the Research and Development Board is charged with the duty of recommending measures necessary for the coordination of research and development among the military departments, and with the allocation among them of responsibility for specific programs of joint interest. It is responsible for the preparation of a complete and integrated program of research and development for military purposes, worked out with reference to the technical objectives and strategic concepts of the National Military Establishment. This necessarily involves the shaping of policy within the National Military Establishment in line with research and development programs involving agencies outside the Establishment, and with general trends of scientific research which are specifically related to the national security. The Research and Development Board advises the Joint Chiefs of Staff concerning the interaction between research and development and strategy, especially in regard to the influence of new scientific advances.

During the fiscal year 1948 the expenses of Joint Chiefs of Staff and Joint Staff, the Munitions Board and the Research and Development Board are being paid directly from Army and Navy appropriations and for the office of the Secretary by transfers, estimated at $1,385,500, from Army and Navy appropriations. The estimate of $6,395,000 for 1949 provides for personal services and other necessary expenses for all of these agencies.

Department of the Air Force

The estimates for the Department of the Air Force for fiscal year 1949 provide only for the direct requirements of the Department and exclude the indirect support for such items as pay of military personnel, subsistence, clothing, housing, hospitalization and all other support items contributed by the Department of the Army. This is necessary in 1949, because insufficient time was available for preparing the basis for an all-inclusive Air Force estimate.

The budget of the Department of the Air Force for the fiscal year 1949 provides for annual appropriations of $1,169,426,000 and for contract authorization in the amount of $550 million. Provided under the title "United States Air Force" is the amount of $1,162,792,000 for the procurement, operation, maintenance, design, testing, overhaul and repair of aircraft and related aeronautical matériel and equipment. In addition, there is provided $900,000 for salaries in the office of the Secretary of the Air Force, and $5,734,000 for salaries in the office of Chief of Staff, United States Air Force.

This estimate will provide for the operation of 55 combat groups, plus 17 separate squadrons, during fiscal year 1949, and for the training of 3,000 pilots annually, with necessary indirect support for such programs being contained in the estimates of the Department of the Army.

Department of the Army

MILITARY ACTIVITIES

General statement.—Under the National Security Act of 1947, the Department of the Army is charged with the primary responsibility of organizing, equipping, training, and maintaining the Army as well as furnishing indirect support to the Air Force. These responsibilities are discharged by the Department of the Army under conditions, and to the extent, prescribed by the Congress and the President. The Department of the Army consists of the following components: The Regular Army, the National Guard of the United States, the National Guard while in the service of the United States, the Officers' Reserve Corps, the Organized Reserves, and the Enlisted Reserve Corps. At the present time, those on active duty are largely the Regular Army, members of the Reserve Corps (Army and Air), and a large number of officers volunteering for active duty. In past years, explanations made to the Congress of the functions of the Army and Air Force components have emphasized that, in time of peace, these elements constitute the framework upon which a wartime military organization may be readily built. This remains true. However, the advent of new weapons capable of striking across vast distances without warning requires that this framework also be self-sufficient to repulse the initial blow of an attacker.

Military budget program, fiscal year 1949.—The Department of the Army estimates for the fiscal year 1949, including indirect support of the Air Force, contemplate the appropriation of $4.6 billion, exclusive of cash required for liquidation of prior year contract authorizations. This total will provide minimum support for:

(a) Operation of the military activities of the Department of the Army.

(b) Operation, training, and maintenance of the Army overseas and in the United States.

(c) Maintenance of required command installations and Army facilities on a scale commensurate with present and projected usage.

(d) Procurement to the extent necessary to maintain the required flow of essential supplies and equipment, including procurement of Army Ground Force equipment and computed requirements.

(e) Indirect support of the Air Force in the form of pay, subsistence, clothing, upkeep of quarters and airfields, and similar aid.

(f) Maintenance in stand-by of the Government-owned industrial facilities approved for retention as reserve capacity, industrial mobilization, and procurement coordination planning.

(g) Research and development.

The estimates do not include funds for construction at posts, camps, and stations in the United States and overseas, or for additional research facilities. Supplemental estimates, which appear elsewhere in this Budget, will be submitted at such time as the necessary authorizing legislation is enacted by the Congress.

The budget estimates provide for a total man-year strength of 922,290 during the fiscal year 1949, including 362,290 for the Air Force and 560,000 for the Army. Of the Army man-year strength, it is anticipated that 298,400 will be overseas during fiscal year 1949 and 261,600 will be in the United States.

The budget estimates for the Department of the Army for the fiscal year 1949, including indirect support of the Air Force, may be divided functionally as follows:

To carry out the military operations of the Corps of Engineers and for the maintenance at a minimum level of existing structures and facilities, both overseas and in the United States, $319,770,000 is required.

A total of $280,250,000 is for the purpose of supporting the programs of the National Guard, Organized Reserves, and Reserve Officers' Training Corps. These components are, in part, vital elements of the M-day force, immediately available for the defense of the United States in an emergency.

Funds totaling $741,905,000 are provided to defray the cost of food, clothing, and essential quartermaster supplies and services for the military forces.

Funds totaling $356,198,000 are for the activities of the Transportation Corps in moving personnel and equipment throughout the far-flung areas where our soldiers are now stationed.

The operations of the Ordnance Department in the care and preservation of ordnance equipment, the operation of ordnance depots, and testing facilities, and the procurement of improved equipment will amount to $366,856,000.

Funds amounting to $102,446,000 are required for the operation of the Signal Corps and to maintain the essential communications of the Army, both in the United States and overseas bases.

The cost of medical service, the procurement of medical supplies, and the operation of medical facilities is estimated at $64,900,000.

CIVIL FUNCTIONS

General statement.—The civil functions administered by the Department of the Army consist of a group of activities only indirectly related to the active Military Establishment and are gathered under a separate head in the Budget to distinguish them from the strictly military activities of the Army.

Quartermaster Corps.—The Secretary of the Army has the responsibility for acquiring land for and maintaining national cemeteries and marking the graves of veterans. These activities have been delegated to the Quartermaster General and are financed by the appropriation "Cemeterial expenses." The allowance of $7,280,000 for fiscal year 1949 and an additional $38,369,000 without a fiscal year expenditure limitation reflect in a large measure the preparation of additional burial sites, caskets, shipping cases, transportation, and other costs incident to the return from overseas of World War II dead, and, in addition, provide for deferred cemeterial maintenance, headstones, operational expenses, and other requirements at existing national cemeteries.

Signal Corps.—The Signal Corps of the Army maintains a communication system between the United States and Alaska and within Alaska, which handles commercial messages. The system connects with approximately 300 telephone or radio stations which are commercially operated or operated by other Government agencies. In 1949 the Alaska Communication System plans to operate 41 stations in Alaska and 1 in Seattle.

Corps of Engineers.—The Corps of Engineers, United States Army, under the supervision of the Secretary of the Army, is responsible for maintenance and improvement of rivers, harbors, and waterways of the Nation in the interest of navigation, control of floods, and related hydroelectric power development.

Navigation works.—The amount of $107,350,000 is included in the 1949 Budget for construction. In addition, $2 million is included for advance planning. An additional amount of $74.5 million is included for maintenance and operation of completed works. This amount will permit the accomplishment of normal maintenance activities as well as the continuation of needed major repairs and operations postponed during the war and initiated in fiscal year 1948. In addition, $3.4 million is included for surveys, $1,490,000 for transfer to Fish and Wildlife Service, primarily for fish conservation activities in the Columbia River Basin, and $2,527,000 for other continuing activities and provisions for the various boards.

Flood control.—In 1917 the Corps of Engineers, in compliance with an act of Congress, extended its work in connection with rivers and harbors to include the undertaking of flood-control works on the lower Mississippi River and the Sacramento River, Calif.

The authorization for appropriation for flood protection and improvement of navigation on the lower Mississippi River is $1,026,609,500 exclusive of maintenance, of which $447,076,300 remains to be provided. The estimate of $70 million for fiscal year 1949 provides for continuance of the improvement project, with a view to effecting substantial completion thereof in fiscal year 1957, and for maintenance of the navigation channel and flood-control works.

The estimated Federal cost of the Sacramento River flood-control project is $40,850,000, of which $34,445,000 has been appropriated. The estimated figure of $2 million for fiscal year 1949 is to continue construction of the authorized improvement.

In 1936 Congress adopted a national flood-control policy and assigned responsibility for Federal investigations and improvements in connection therewith to the Corps of Engineers. The amount of $379,895,000 is included in the 1949 Budget for construction. In addition, $4 million is included for advance planning; $3 million for maintenance, operation, and repair of completed structures; $5 million for surveys; $3 million for emergency repairs to flood-control structures; $1 million for snagging; and $1 million for emergency bank repairs.

Veterans' hospitals.—The Veterans' Administration has arranged to have the Corps of Engineers, United States Army, assume responsibility for the preparation of plans for and the construction of 72 of its new hospitals with a total bed capacity of 38,158. The estimated planning and construction cost of these hospitals is $736 million (exclusive of $20 million to be utilized by the Veterans' Administration for site acquisition and technical services). It is anticipated that these hospitals either will be completed or under construction during fiscal year 1949.

United States Soldiers' Home.—The United States Soldiers' Home at Washington, D. C., provides domiciliary and medical care for former soldiers of the Regular Army who qualify for admission under physical and age eligibility requirements. The estimated membership at the Home for 1949 is 1,410, which is approximately the same as 1947 and the estimated membership for 1948.

Over-all fund estimates for 1949 are 1 percent greater than the prior year appropriation. The amount included for maintenance and operation of the Home is 6.6 percent greater than that for fiscal year 1948, due principally to increased costs of personal services and commodities. Funds for the continuation of the modernization program at the Home are 18 percent less than the amount provided in fiscal year 1948.

Government and relief in occupied areas.—The cost of government and relief in occupied areas for the fiscal year 1949 is estimated to total $1,250 million.

the summary table shows an increase in appropriations of $2,862,800 for 1949, this does not reflect the actual level of operations in the Canal Zone. The total gross obligations for 1949 are estimated at $66,409,654 compared to $69,707,927 in 1948, a decrease of $3,298,273. The total reimbursements and receipts (exclusive of tolls and revenues covered directly into the Treasury) are estimated at $39,662,127 in 1949 compared to $41,746,252 in 1948, a drop of $2,084,125. This leaves a total net obligation for 1949 of only $26,747,527 compared to $27,961,675 in 1948, a decrease of $1,214,148. Revenues covered directly into the Treasury are estimated at $20,162,284 in 1949 and $20,437,279 in 1948, a decrease of $274,995.

Department of the Navy

The fundamental naval policy of the United States is to maintain the Navy in strength and readiness to uphold national policies and interests, and to guard the United States and its continental and overseas possessions. The administration of this policy is carried out by the Department of the Navy and by other parts of the Naval Establishment.

The Department of the Navy is comprised of the office of the Secretary, the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, the Bureaus of Naval Personnel, Aeronautics, Ships, Ordnance, Medicine and Surgery, Yards and Docks, Supplies and Accounts, and the headquarters of the United States Marine Corps.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

The direction of the Department of the Navy is exercised by the Secretary, assisted by the Under Secretary, the Assistant Secretary for Air, the Assistant Secretary and the Administrative Assistant to the Secretary. In addition to his civilian assistants, the Secretary is aided by a staff of military advisers and military administrative assistants composed of the Chief of Naval Operations, the Vice Chief of Naval Operations and five Deputy Chiefs of Naval Operations, the Director of Budget and Reports, the chiefs of seven bureaus, the Commandant of the Marine Corps, the Chief of Naval Research, the Judge Advocate General and the chairman of the General Board.

The Secretary of the Navy is responsible through the Secretary of Defense to the President for the supervision and direction of all naval affairs and activities. By virtue of the National Security Act of 1947 he is a member of the National Security Council and of the War Council.

The Under Secretary of the Navy is responsible for legislative and legal activities of the Naval Establishment. He promulgates policies, general procedures, and legal determinations concerning the procurement, production, and utilization of matériel and facilities; the procurement, administration and utilization of civilian personnel; and collaborates with the Chief of Naval Operations in the determination of stock levels and replenishment requirements and the administration of inventory control systems. He is also a member of the Munitions Board created by the National Security Act of 1947.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air is responsible for all matters of the Naval Establishment relating to aeronautics, including the coordination of naval aeronautics with other governmental agencies. He has responsibility for the correlation and programing of matériel research and of experimental, test and development activities.

The Administrative Assistant to the Secretary of the Navy is responsible for general supervision of the accounts relating to the fiscal affairs of the Naval Establishment, including the expenditure of funds. He has responsibility for matters of organization, staffing, administrative procedures, and the utilization of personnel in the Executive Office of the Secretary.

In addition to the offices of Under Secretary, Assistant Secretary, Assistant Secretary for Air and the Administrative Assistant to the Secretary, the executive office of the Secretary of the Navy is made up of an administrative grouping of other offices composed of the Office of Budget and Reports, the Office of Industrial Relations, the General Board, the Office of Naval Research, the Office of the General Counsel, the Office of Public Relations, and the Material Division.

CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS

By virtue of the National Security Act of 1947 the Chief of Naval Operations is a member of the War Council. By virtue of Executive Order 9635 he is principal naval adviser to the President and to the Secretary of the Navy on the conduct of war, and the principal naval adviser and military executive to the Secretary on the conduct of the activities of the Naval Establishment. The Chief of Naval Operations exercises military command over all naval operating forces and is responsible to the Secretary of the Navy and to the President for their use in war and for plans and preparations for their readiness for war in peacetime. Under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy, he is charged with the preparation, readiness, and logistic support of the operating forces, and with the coordination and direction of effort to this end of the bureaus and offices of the Department of the Navy.

VICE CHIEF AND DEPUTY CHIEFS OF NAVAL OPERATIONS

In carrying out the responsibilities of his office, the Chief of Naval Operations is assisted by the Vice Chief and five Deputy Chiefs of Naval Operations. The Vice Chief of Naval Operations is the assistant and principal adviser to the Chief of Naval Operations and succeeds to command in the absence of the Chief of Naval Operations. The five Deputy Chiefs of Naval Operations are assigned specific phases of responsibility in the performance of the over-all tasks of the Chief of Naval Operations.

BUREAU OF NAVAL PERSONNEL

The Bureau of Naval Personnel is responsible for the over-all administration of military personnel of the Naval Establishment. It has charge of the procurement, education, training, welfare, discipline, promotion, and distribution of officers and enlisted personnel of the Regular Navy and of the Naval Reserve. It maintains and operates the Naval Academy, the Naval Postgraduate School, the Naval War College, the naval training stations, the naval home, naval prisons, schools for the training of officers and enlisted personnel, and supervises the administration of receiving ships and stations.

BUREAU OF AERONAUTICS

The function of the Bureau of Aeronautics is to provide, maintain, and operate aircraft of the required numbers and types to accomplish with maximum efficiency the mission of Navy and Marine Corps aeronautics. To this end the Bureau of Aeronautics has cognizance over the design, testing, procurement, production, maintenance, overhaul, and repair of both Navy and Marine Corps aircraft and related aeronautical matériel and equipment, including aircraft, matériel, and equipment of the Navy and Marine Corps Reserve. All Regular and Reserve Navy and Marine Corps aviation shore establishments, both within and outside the continental limits of the United States, are under its management and technical control. Provision of supplies and equipment for all aerological and most photographic activities for the entire Navy and Marine Corps is the responsibility of this bureau. In cooperation with other agencies engaged in scientific research and development, the bureau sponsors and supports experimental aeronautical work to ensure continuing improvements in the naval air arm.

BUREAU OF ORDNANCE

The function of the Bureau of Ordnance is to arm the Navy both offensively and defensively. It is charged with developing and research incidental thereto, design, procurement or manufacture, stowage, issue, maintenance and efficiency, of armor, armament and ammunition, including armor, torpedoes, mines, depth charges, rockets, aviation ordnance, guided missiles and other weapons of war. Naval ordnance establishments ashore, such as naval ordnance plants, torpedo stations, powder factories, proving grounds, testing stations, ammunition depots and magazines are operated under its cognizance.

BUREAU OF SUPPLIES AND ACCOUNTS

The Bureau of Supplies and Accounts is responsible for the principal part of matériel supply for the Naval Establishment, for disbursement of public funds and for keeping money and property accounts of the Naval Establishment, including appropriation and cost accounting at shore activities and cost inspection under cost-type contracts. The matériel supply function includes acquisition, inventory control, distribution, warehousing and issue of naval matériel, with the exception of medical, ordnance and Marine Corps matériel. The Bureau maintains and operates naval supply centers and depots, fuel plants, coffee roasting plants, commissary and other naval retail activities, the naval clothing factory, and numerous specialized offices; it maintains and provides business and procedural direction to naval inventory control offices; and maintains and furnishes technical guidance and direction to supply, accounting, and disbursing departments, of other naval activities. The bureau controls the naval stock fund, the clothing and small stores fund, and the naval procurement fund, and administers appropriations for operation of its own activities, for commercial freight transportation and fuel used by the Navy and for the subsistence of naval personnel.

BUREAU OF SHIPS

The Bureau of Ships is one of the principal matériel bureaus of the Naval Establishment. It is responsible for the design, construction or acquisition, maintenance, repair, and alteration of naval ships and craft (except aircraft and airships) and their machinery, supplies and equipment, excluding ordnance and aeronautical supplies and equipment. It has management control of all naval shipyards, all naval shore radio stations, and certain laboratories devoted to research, development and test in fields within its technical cognizance. It has technical control of the Navy Salvage Service. It is responsible for procuring matériel and supplies, of great variety and large volume, used for the foregoing purposes.

BUREAU OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY

The Bureau of Medicine and Surgery administers a medical department which provides medical care for the Navy and the Marine Corps. It is responsible specifically for the maintenance of the health of naval personnel and for the treatment and care of its sick and injured. It provides by careful physical examination for the selection of men of excellent health and physique for service in the Navy and Marine Corps and for the elimination of those unfitted by disease or injury for further active service. The mission of the Medical Department is to promote the efficiency of the Navy and Marine Corps through the maintenance of health and physical fitness.

BUREAU OF YARDS AND DOCKS

The Bureau of Yards and Docks is charged with and responsible for the design, construction, alteration and inspection of the public works and public utilities of the entire Naval Shore Establishment; and for the maintenance, repair, upkeep and operation of the shore facilities assigned to its cognizance, both in the continental United States and in the overseas bases. It is charged with the acquisition of all real estate acquired or leased for naval purposes.

MARINE CORPS

The Marine Corps is an integral part of the Navy. Although the Marine Corps is a component of the naval service which exists primarily to "support the fleet," marines have, in times of national emergency, been detached for special service.

The Marine Corps has four distinct tasks: (1) To maintain a mobile force in immediate readiness for use in operations involving shore objectives; (2) to maintain Marine detachments as a part of the ship's crew on battleships, aircraft carriers, and cruisers; (3) to provide forces for the protection of American lives and property abroad; and (4) to provide garrisons for the safeguarding of naval shipyards and stations in the United States and in outlying possessions.

NAVY BUDGET PROGRAM, FISCAL YEAR 1949

The budget of the Naval Establishment for the fiscal year 1949 provides for annual and continuing appropriations of $3,510,749,700 and for contract authorizations in the amount of $373 million. These amounts do not include additional authority of $230 million for shipbuilding which will not require appropriations in fiscal year 1949. The total budget request for 1949 is $3,883,749,700. In addition, provision is made for the transfer of $14.3 million from the appropriation "Increase and replacement of naval vessels (construction and maintenance)" to augment the appropriation "Construction of ships" and $1.7 million from the appropriation "Increase and replacement of naval vessels (armor, armaments, and ammunition)" to augment the appropriation "Ordnance for new construction."

The distribution of this over-all total to major categories indicates that the largest amount required, $1,401,656,000, is for the pay, subsistence, transportation, training, education, welfare, and medical care of naval personnel (including personnel of the Naval Reserve). This sum accounts for 36.1 percent of the total Navy budget. This estimate for military personnel expense is based on an assumption of an average pay strength of 417,589, including officers, warrant officers, nurses, and enlisted men (exclusive of the Marine Corps). This includes a total of 14,103 officers and men of the Naval Reserve on full time active duty in connection with the Naval Reserve program.

There is provided $1,017,342,100 for the maintenance and operation of the fleet, including repairs, equipage, supplies, and fuel for vessels, ordnance and ordnance stores, freight charges, and upkeep of the shore establishments supporting the fleet. This sum comprises 26.2 percent of the total

A total of $1,064,668,000 is provided directly for aviation, of which $691,668,000 is cash and $373 million is contract authority. This total comprises 27.4 percent of the budget. This amount is exclusive of the support given to aviation activities by personnel and fleet funds.

The Marine Corps estimates account for 7.6 percent of the total budget, or $295,006,000. This estimate is based on an assumption of an average Marine Corps pay strength of 83,548, including officers and enlisted men. This includes a total of 1,548 officers and men of the Marine Corps Reserve on full time active duty in connection with the Marine Corps Reserve program.

The remainder of the budget, totaling $105,077,600, or 2.7 percent, consists of appropriations for miscellaneous expenses, departmental salaries and other small appropriations.

Municipal Works, Panama and Colon—

Pursuant of Article VII of the 1903 Treaty with the Republic of Panama, contract was entered into in 1907 between the Isthmian Canal Commission (Panama Canal) and the Republic of Panama, under which the Commission constructed the water distribution and sewer systems, as well as some paving in the cities of Panama and Colon, in order to provide necessary utilities for those cities. The Panama Canal has maintained the water and sewer systems and pavements, and extends and improves them on properly authorized and approved requests by the Republic of Panama. The Canal has collected the water rentals from the water consumers and applies the proceeds thereof to cover the cost of the water; maintenance, extension, and improvement of the systems; amortization of the investment; and interest at the rate of 2 percent on the unamortized balance. In accordance with the joint resolution approved May 3, 1943 (57 Stat. 74), and in conformity with Executive Order 9551 of May 16, 1945, the transfer of the water and sewer systems in Panama and Colon has been negotiated and covered in the instrument of transfer to the Republic of Panama of the water and sewer systems in the cities of Panama and Colon and agreement respecting incidental and related matters, between the Governor, The Panama Canal, and the Minister of Foreign Relations of the Republic of Panama, under date of December 28, 1945. The effective date of the transfer was January 1, 1946, and interest on and amortization of the original investment ceased to accrue to the United States as of that date. The schedule below under the heading of "Surplus account" is based on the transfer effected as of January 1, 1946, and indicates the estimated obligation of the accrued surplus to undertake any requested and approved extensions and improvements to the water and sewer systems and the pavements in the cities of Panama and Colon.

Coincidental with the accomplishment of the instrument of transfer there was entered into a contract covering the management of the water and sewer systems and the paving of the streets of the cities of Panama and Colon by The Panama Canal for the account of the Republic of Panama. The schedule below under the heading of "Management account" indicates the obligations, receipts, and payment to the Republic of Panama as provided for in the management agreement.
